12 stimulation treatment means the application of one or more acids
13 to the well or underground geologic formation to enhance oil or 14 gas production or recovery. For purposes of this subparagraph, 15 the acid well stimulation treatment may be conducted at any 16 applied pressure, may be used in combination with hydraulic 17 fracturing treatments or other well stimulation treatments, and 18 may include acid matrix stimulation treatments and acid
19 fracturing treatments. Acid matrix stimulation treatments are 20 acid well stimulation treatments conducted at pressures lower 21 than the applied pressure necessary to fracture the underground
22 geologic formation.

23 (c) If the chemical disclosure registry cannot accept and
